

Pollution Across Borders

Transboundary Fire, Smoke and Haze in Southeast Asia

Edited by: Euston Quah & Tsiat Siong Tan (NTU, Singapore)

This book is a collection of insights from experts of various fields, and will entail discussions of the recurring haze problem in Southeast Asia.

It discusses multiple aspects of the haze problem. What is the cause of the haze? Who are the perpetrators and victims? What are the impacts and costs of the haze? Why has the haze problem persisted for decades? Are there prospects of resolving the pollution? How should we analyze the issue? Which solutions are more or less effective than others? How can we involve the stakeholders? The book provides a wide range of views on the haze problem. Written in a simple and accessible manner, this book allows the readers to easily access across different fields and develop a deeper understanding of the haze.

The Legal and Economic Analysis of the WTO/FTA System

By Dukgeun Ahn (Seoul National University, Korea)

“This collection of essays offers a unique and valuable perspective on both the economics and the law of international trade. Ranging from the dispute settlement mechanism of the World Trade Organization to the use of anti-dumping duties within free trade agreements, the book covers the terrain of trade and trade law with insight and analysis. Scholars of international trade will learn a lot from this.”

Professor Alan Deardorff
University of Michigan

This book presents a collation of interdisciplinary studies covering a wide range of issues from WTO dispute settlement issues to trade remedy systems and FTA negotiations.

Trade Policy in Asia

Higher Education and Media Services

Edited by: Christopher Findlay (University of Adelaide, Australia), Hildegunn Kyvik Nordas (Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, France), Gloria Pasadilla (APEC Secretariat, Singapore)

Education and media services have much in common. Both provide services that embody local cultures, in which there is extensive public sector participation and significant domestic regulation. At the same time, both are dramatically affected by the information and communications technology revolution. The production of information content now involves huge costs in terms of research and development or artistic talent, whilst the cost of making such products available to other consumers is very low. This in turn challenges the effectiveness of domestic regulation and raises fundamental questions about its purpose, calling for an increased scope for international trade and investment, and the development of supply chains.

Trade Policy in Asia responds to these issues to provide readers with a comprehensive and consistent treatment of policy in the higher education and media services sector across a range of Asian economies little studied in the existing literature. The book opens the discussion with an overview of global trends in each area, followed by detailed, country-specific studies. Through comparative work, it identifies common elements across these sectors and highlights critical implications for trade policy.

I Want to Marry You But ...

A Marriage Guide for the Young Adult

By: Jennifer Yeo

Lawyers may have a tendency to treat marriage as a strict legal agreement between two parties with certain legal rules and terms that must be followed. Though in some ways akin to a contract, the institution of marriage goes far beyond contractual obligations. It encompasses social, financial, and emotional bonds between both parties.

The law may seem daunting for many non-legally trained individuals. This unique book, written from the perspective of Singapore law, provides an insight into the impact the law will have on him or her. It simplifies the labyrinth of legislation and case law to allay fears, encourage an understanding of what marriage entails, and flag out possible difficulties the reader may face during the course of his or her relationship. The guide will also showcase the rights and responsibilities that result from a marriage.
